

Construction Firm Reduces Health and Safety Process from 5 days to 1 Hour with ProntoForms

OTTAWA, Canada - October 16, 2014 - ProntoForms Corporation (TSXV:PFM), maker of the leading mobile form solution ProntoForms, has published a case study on Crosstown Transit Constructors, a joint Toronto subway tunneling venture of two American and two Canadian construction firms. Crosstown Transit Constructors deploys ProntoForms on smartphones and tablets to quickly collect critical health and safety data on the job site and send it back to the office.

"Before (ProntoForms), the process could take up to five days. Now, forms are dispatched to all of management via ProntoForms and the whole process takes an hour," explained Christina Lindstrom, Crosstown Transit Constructors Health and Safety Manager.

In addition to facilitating field data collection such as safety site checklists and engineering reports, ProntoForms has helped the Crosstown Transit Constructors eliminate 30 hours a month in data entry.

"This HSE success story is a brilliant example of the powerful ProntoForms ROI, and how simple it is to streamline and better communicate critical data with our mobile form solution. Mobilizing any business process with ProntoForms not only saves time and money, but more importantly, it allows managers to access data faster, leading to quicker, more informed decisions," said Alvaro Pombo, ProntoForms Founder and CEO.
