

Major US Utility Company Wins Verdantix HSE 2018 Award Using ProntoForms Mobile Safety Solution

No-code platform enables large utility to monitor safety performance and compliance throughout their organization

OTTAWA, Canada – March 22, 2018 – ProntoForms Corporation (TSXV: PFM), the global leader in smart mobile forms for enterprise, today announced that the company has been recognized at the 2018 HSE Innovation Award, administered by independent research firm Verdantix.

The winner in the Power Utilities category, one of the largest utilities in the U.S., was awarded for its "...implementation of mobile applications for risk management and work audits...us[ing] technology from ProntoForms to monitor performance and compliance across the gas operation teams at the employee level, fine tune corrective action plans and training programs."

"We're honored that Verdantix, an independent research firm and a leading authority in the safety industry, recognizes the innovation and value our solution brings to Health & Safety and Asset Management processes in the enterprise," says Alvaro Pombo, CEO of ProntoForms. "This deployment saw ProntoForms as a mobile front-end to an SAP-based legacy system of record, and we've become an essential part of their 'Technology enablement in the field' strategy."

Mr. Pombo concluded: "Similar to this major U.S. utility, we see many enterprise customers expand the use of our solution into multiple and diverse organizational processes. Our platform can be implemented by non-technical Line-of-Business (LOB) owners, sometimes referred to as citizen developers, who need enterprise-ready mobile apps that will help their service technicians be more efficient in the field. Additionally, enterprise IT teams often adopt our solution to build apps for multiple business groups, all from one technology provider."
